On January 9th of this year, I mailed you a check for $5.00, in payment for dues 1928, and also requesting that you accept my resignation as an associate member.

I note that the check has never come through my bank and I am writing to ask if you have received it.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir:

Responding to your letter of April 3d., we have made a careful search for the check of which you write, and have discovered it, where it had been misplaced in one of our bank files. I regret exceedingly that you should have been put to the inconvenience of writing about this. The check has been sent forward and should reach your hands in due course.

I am very sorry that you are withdrawing from our membership.

very truly yours,

Secretary.
